Is that the end?

This story happened to me a year ago. My family and I were planning to go to ^{the} Sihote-Alin mountains directly through the forest. So we ²⁰packed our camps and ²⁵approached to the forest.

Firstly, we ³⁰were having fun and enjoyed our small journey. But very soon we understood that it had not been an easy thing to do, and got very tired, but we ³⁵continue going, until we got exhausted. By this moment sun ⁴⁰had already set, and it got really dark. So we placed our camps and went to bed. How terribly wrong we were, when ⁴⁵it was the end of this day...

Suddenly, we heard the sound of cracking branches. 'Another rabbit', we ⁵⁰thought, have not paying much attention to that. The branches cracked again. This time much louder. My dad ⁵⁵finally said: 'Wow... That was loud! Let me check what's there...'

Next moment he returned to us again. He was pale as snow. 'B-Bear...' - he said. 'I think ⁶⁰he saw me' - my dad added. 'We are doomed! Is that the end?' I thought. The time stopped at that moment.

But a moment later time became fast as hell. Suddenly, forest ranger, who was inspecting this part of forest, ⁶⁵start crying and shoot in the air shooting in the air. Not mentioning us, the bear was scared of too loud and rapid noise. We heard branches ⁷⁰cracking again, but they were distancing from us.

In that day we were saved by this courageous man, he ⁷⁵became a true friend of our family since that. That's how we got a new friend. And a journey is best measured in friends rather than miles.
