Interesting case in Iceland

Interesting case in Iceland

It all started when my friend and I decided to spend our holidays in Iceland. We ^{understood} ~~decided~~ that we needed more people for our journey because travelling with a big company of people is always ~~fun~~ fun. So, my friend called his acquaintances and the company was formed.

Lucas, Nicos, Carlos, Angela and I stayed in a local hotel and started our tour which included the exploration of some famous mountains and lakes. We had a good time together and everybody was satisfied.

When we came back to the hotel Lucas understood that he had lost his documents. Everyone started panicking and looking for them but it didn't help much.

Nicos (who was really courageous) said: "Stop it! Your panic makes the situation even worse! Let's calm down and ~~they~~ think logically. Lucas, where have you seen your docs ^{for the} ~~last~~ time?" Lucas answered: "It seems like I've left them in the cafe where we had dinner yesterday". Angela suddenly exclaimed: "Oh Gosh! I know a kind woman who works in the lost-and-found office! Maybe she'll help us!"

So, we set up to the local lost-and-found office, hoping for the best. And what do you think? The woman listened to us carefully, went to another room and... Returned us Lucas's documents! We were finally able to go home together!

When everyone calmed down, Lucas said: "You see, a journey is best measured not in friends rather than miles."

We solved this problem because we all were together and supported each other.

Everybody agreed. On our way home everyone was thinking of how exciting our adventure was.
